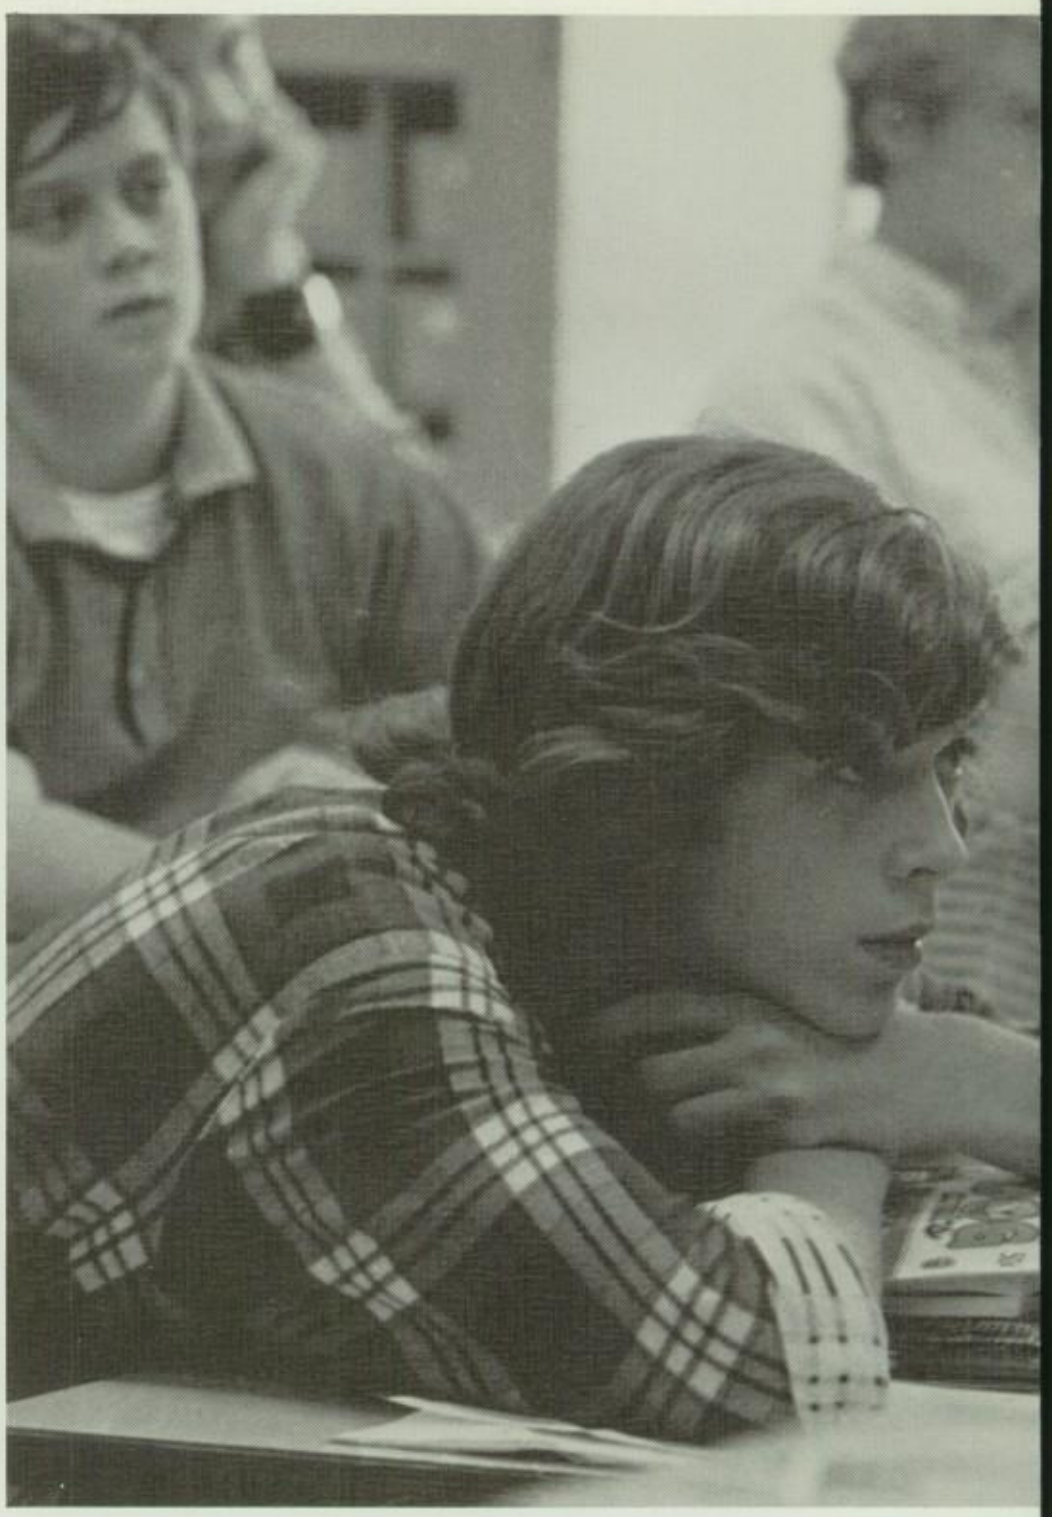
This world is a massive place: over three billion people are living today. When we look at it from afar, this great sea of humans lacks distinguishing qualities. Yet, at a closer look, you notice that each human being is totally unique; that the individual is recognizable as more than a

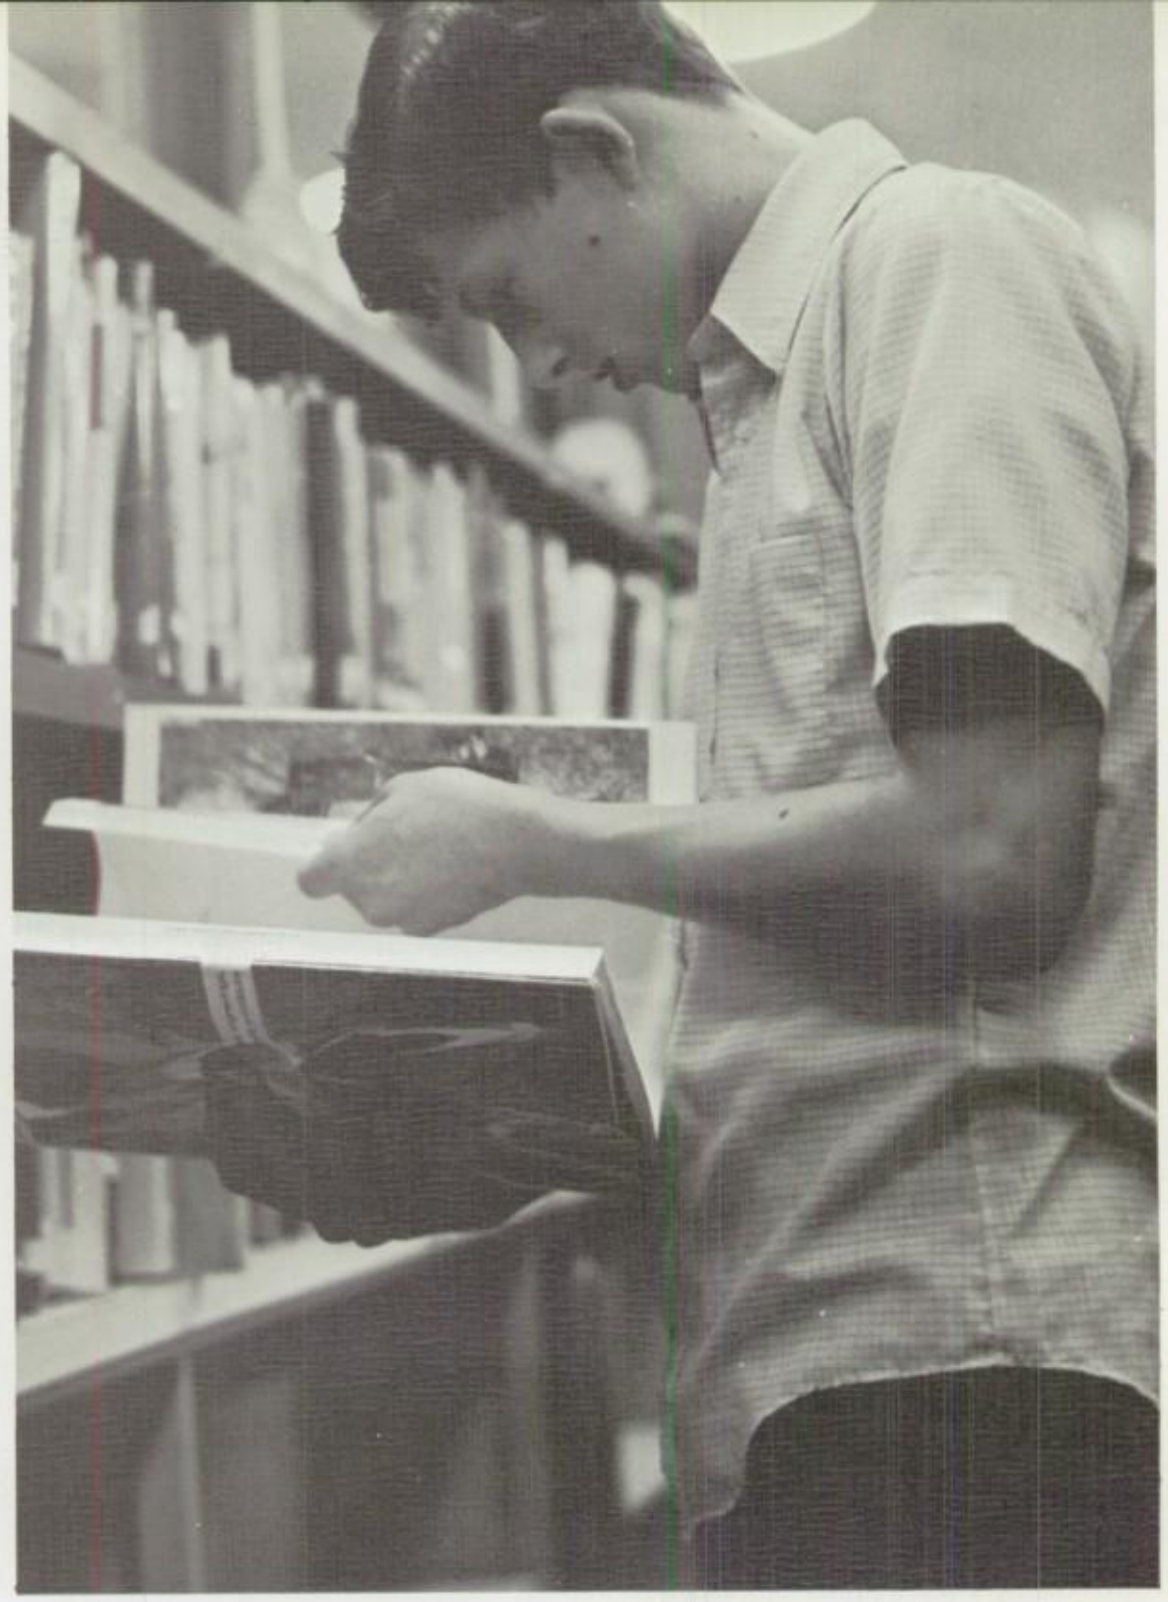
Face in the Crowd

You are thrilled as your float wins a first place trophy; your face is frozen with shock as you are told you are Queen; numb with weariness, you watch your card being stamped for the last mile of the hunger hike; you try desperately to control the soccer ball. These are the faces of

Success

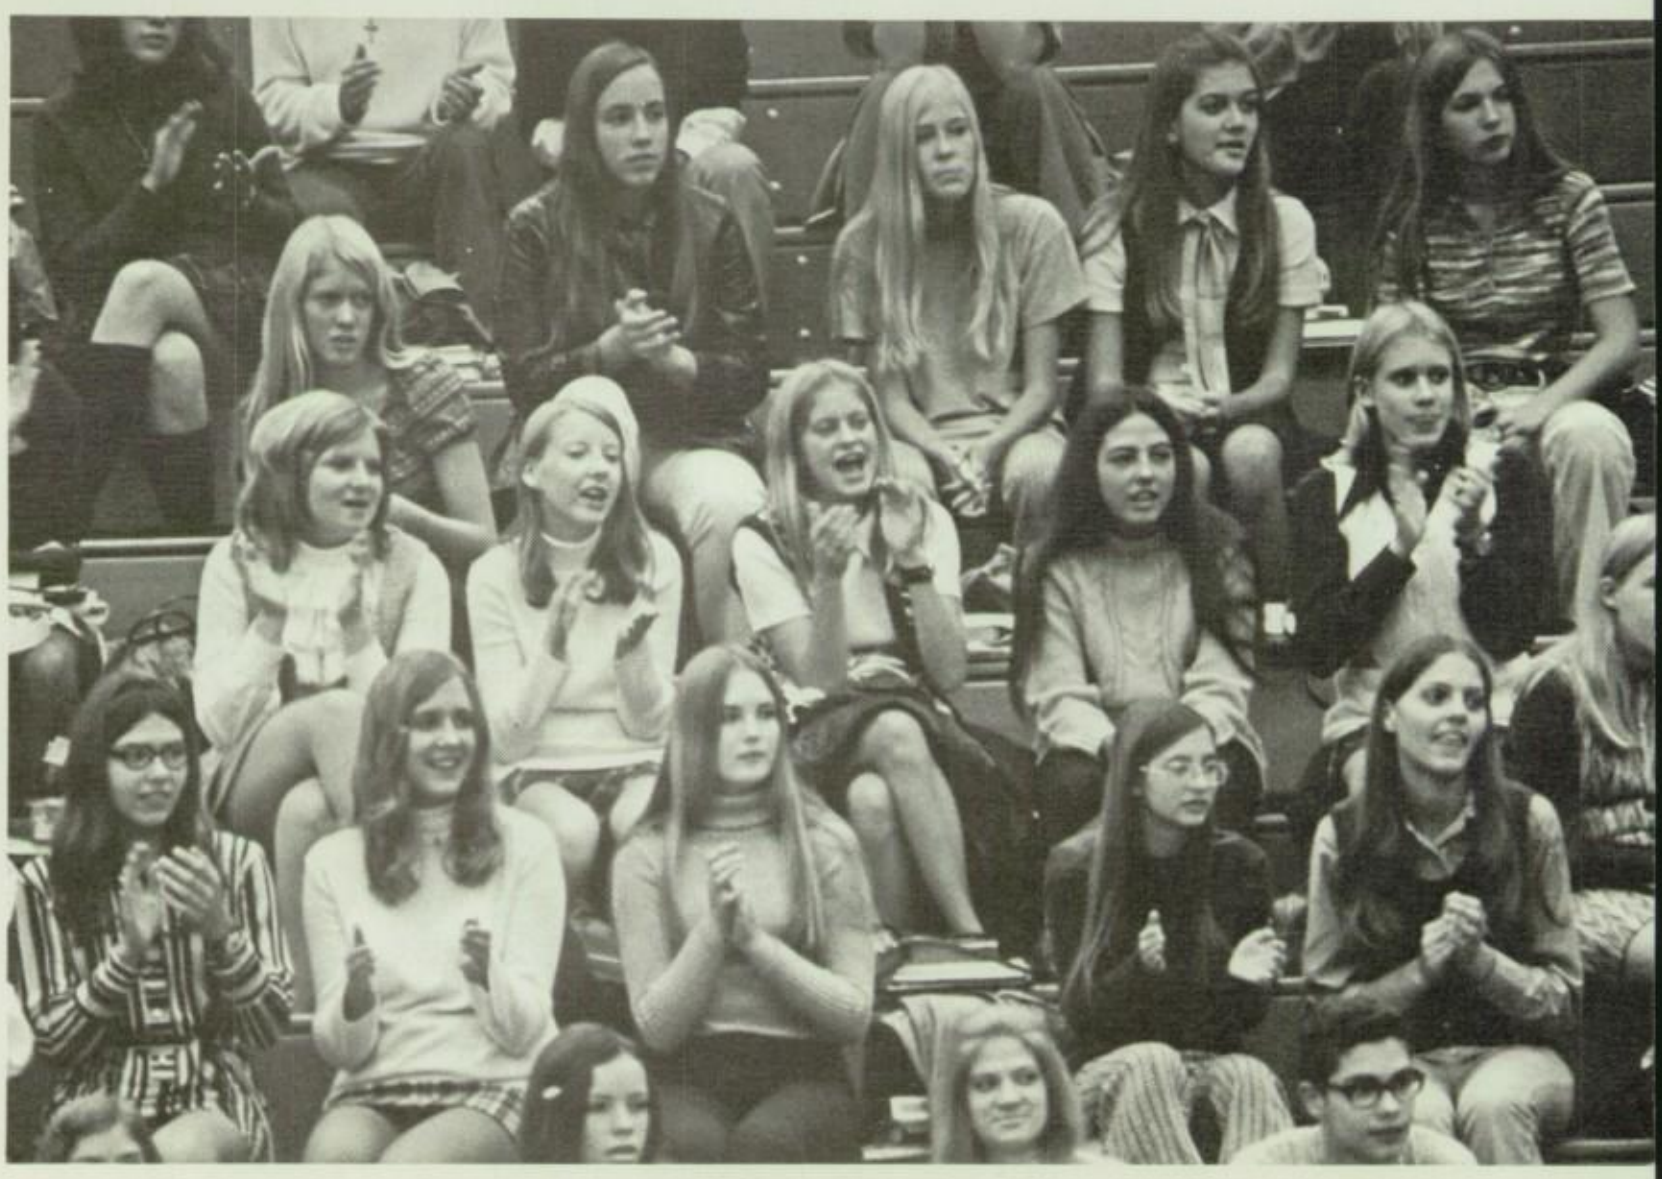
PEP CLUB

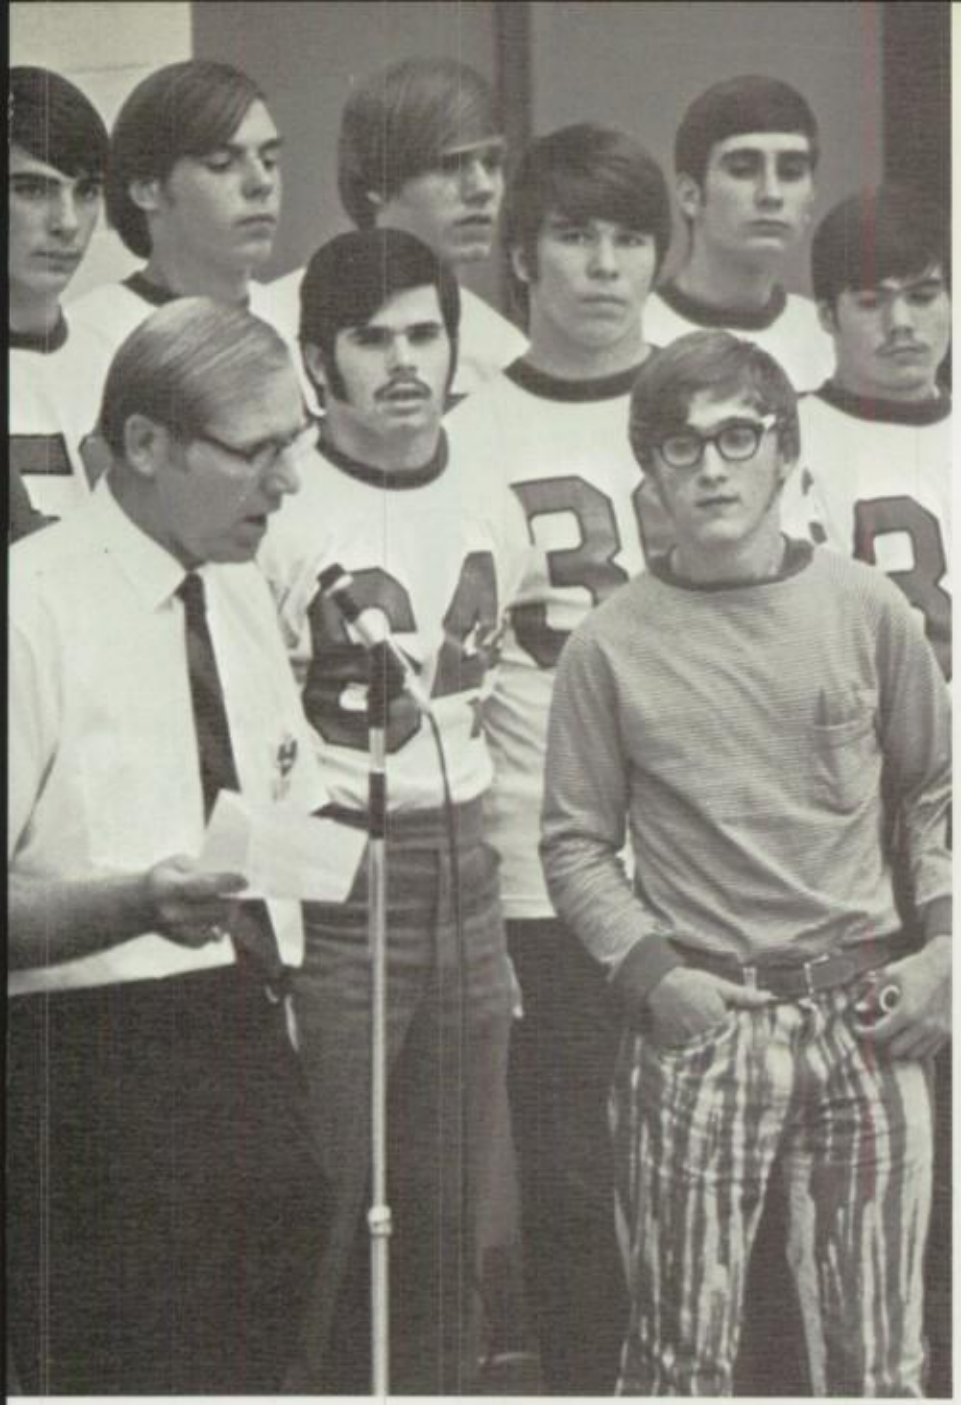




You are afraid to see if that green stuff is really alive; quickly you glance around the corner to see who just ran by. Is the answer really to be found in that borrowed book? The face of a student in the classroom illustrates his desire to understand: these are the faces of

Curiosity





The hoop is broken by the first player of the starting line-up; the crowd roars as a touchdown is scored; football players appear in school colors; everyone feels good as you dedicate the game to an honorary teammate; these are the faces of

Spirit

You are one of a sea of heads in the glass corrider; the crowd grows denser around the taffy apple table during a sale. Why not hold hands anyway, despite the rules? You relax at last in the lounge with your friends: These are the faces of

Togetherness

A feeling of accomplishment is felt within your body as hundreds of eyes are upon you in the arena play; your heart swells as the honor guard passes by; you know you have done well when the head of the art department compliments you on your creation; you feel proud of Maine South as the Hawk spreads enthusiasm among the crowd: these are the faces of

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Throughout South students are thinking constantly. You represent your idea about nature in the art court; you put your own feelings in writing for Southwords; you make use of the Social Science Resource Center in reading about the winning of our independence; you listen attentively as your teacher talks in class: these are the

Faces in Thought

Guidance Department Aids Students' Decision-Making

This year's Guidance Department attempted to stimulate more students to become concerned about their futures. Such advantages as the Career Resource Center, which kept accurate and up-to-date information on all colleges and professional careers, aided students in making important decisions that will effect their entire lives. Counselors also strived to maintain close contact with their respective students in an effort to provide them with answers to both educational and social uncertainties. The students at South have become more aware of the world around them, thus knowing that what lies ahead for them in the future may well depend on the right decision made now.

Librarians Prove Valuable Assistants to Student Body

This year, the library was run on a more liberal and more casual basis than ever before. Along with lounge and early dismissal, the library operated with more relaxed rules. New innovations were resource centers in math, English, science, and social science, staffed by teachers who could help students find information or work out special problems. Reading rooms were available for independent study, and the periodical pit and reserve rooms allowed students to pursue current interests. Under Mr. Cheeseman's direction, problems were at a minimum, and library resources became more important to South's faculty and students.

Math and Science Resource Center (left) proved very helpful for students who were perplexed and needed some assistance.

Math Teachers Successful In Teaching Every Student

Mr. Elliott, Chairman, feels that the math teachers' goal is "to teach math as a general education with a general cultural value." In our technological age, math is becoming more and more important. First, math is a practical science, which has an important use in everyday life. Secondly, the number of occupations requiring mathematical skills is increasing. Thus, the Maine South Math Department tries to provide courses for all levels of study.

As in all areas of education, the math department has instituted change. Its Math III classes are now run on a combination problem-solving and lecture basis. The new system may prove to be the cornerstone for more departmental changes in math and also in other departments.

Business Education Offers Many Diversified Courses

Through such facilities as new equipment and diversified courses, the Business Education Department met the needs of a majority of the students. College-bound students found such courses as Personal Typing and College Note-taking greatly rewarding. Those going into the business world learned that Typing One and Two and Stenography were necessary for a start in a career. Besides specified courses, all students at South were required to take a more generalized course of study, Consumer Ed, before graduation. During the nine week period of this relatively new course, students were given the opportunity to learn many valuable facts that will aid them in the future. Thus, this department helped prepare for various futures.

Foreign Language Classes And Clubs Help Members

Mastery has always been the goal of the Maine South Language Department. This year, with the offer of six languages, the instructors hope to give a program that will attract every student. French, Latin, German, Spanish, Italian, and Russian are the choices, and most students find one to suit their own interests.

Language clubs offer extra information and participation for members, who can learn more about the country where the language originated. The clubs sponsor the Language Awards nights, and pursue individual activities such as visits to ethnic restaurants and foreign-made movies. Active participation both in class and after school gave language teachers reason to be proud of their courses.

English Department Meets The Needs of All Students

The Maine South English Department did all it could to broaden each student's background. Literature courses with American, English, and world readings provided a basis for comparison between styles and trends in writing. Creative Writing gave class members a chance to concentrate on their own styles of writing. Journalism classes were concerned with professionalism in reporting and in expression. A new addition to the department, an English Resource Center, was staffed with teachers who helped students with research and special English-related problems.

Mr. Marlan Davis, chairman, believes the department's purpose is "to help each student experience success with the language." Therefore, teachers devoted much time to a new elective program, introduced to students at registration and designed to meet individual needs.

Mr. Olson (right) succeeded in explaining thoroughly the different aspects of outlining to his sophomores.

Drama Offers a Variety Of Artistic Opportunities

The Maine South Drama Department offered a variety of artistic opportunities. Mr. Chastain, chairman, stated that there is a great need to improve communication, and the Drama Department provides a realistic opportunity for students to communicate.

Students can usually find plenty to do after school and on Saturdays backstage. Every interest is fulfilled, whether it be construction, make-up, lights, sound, costumes, or acting. This year there have been a few revisions, such as painting the little theater in PA-101 and new equipment for WMTH. All are part of performing arts, and everyone from ticket sellers to lead characters is important.

Science Department Aided By Laboratory Equipment

Due to the severe financial trouble that befell the Maine Township school board this year, many educational departments of Maine South had to economize. The Science Department was forced to cut expenses to the barest minimum, while still trying to maintain the fine quality program it has always had. Many expenses were eliminated and the seminar, where work on extracurricular research projects took place six periods a day, was cut to a period and a half.

Despite the expense cuts, the quality of the program did not decrease. The numerous visual aids and laboratory equipment available to the students helped them in the understanding of their various fields. All courses offered in the previous years were again a part of the curriculum. New equipment, such as a McCloud gadge, an ultra-sonic cleaner and a set of weather indicators, was purchased.

Social Science Department Widens Students' Horizons

This year's Social Science Department expanded its curriculum to include two important studies. The new Afro-American course examined the history of the Negro in the US. Also introduced was an independent study course for American History Accelerated students.

Due to the lowering of the voting age, it became necessary for this year's Social Science Department to open new insights into the area of politics. The purpose of the department was to provide an understanding of the political system in order to make students aware of the importance of voting. During their trip to Springfield, students from Government classes visited the Capitol Building and met with US Senator Charles Percy.

Intramurals Become Part Of Girls' PE Department

Variety is the key word in depicting the Girls' Physical Education Department because students were able to participate in many new activities. Girls found enjoyment in their every day planned program, while extra-curricular sports were offered on both intramural and interscholastic levels. For example, this year's intramural teams covered several areas such as volleyball, basketball and softball. More prevelant than before were the inter-scholastic teams, which competed with other schools in the area. All aspects helped to provide a fully rounded education.

Boys' PE Classes Offer Many Types of Activities

Good health is needed in every aspect of living, and Maine South's Boys' Physical Education Department feels that activity is the way to keep in shape. Both competitive and individual activities were provided by South's coaching staff as, in addition to basics such as football and basketball, skills in wrestling, gymnastics, swimming and cross-country were also taught. More emphasis was placed on soccer as a third fall sport in accordance with the growing success of the Maine South's three soccer teams and because of its value as a good running activity.

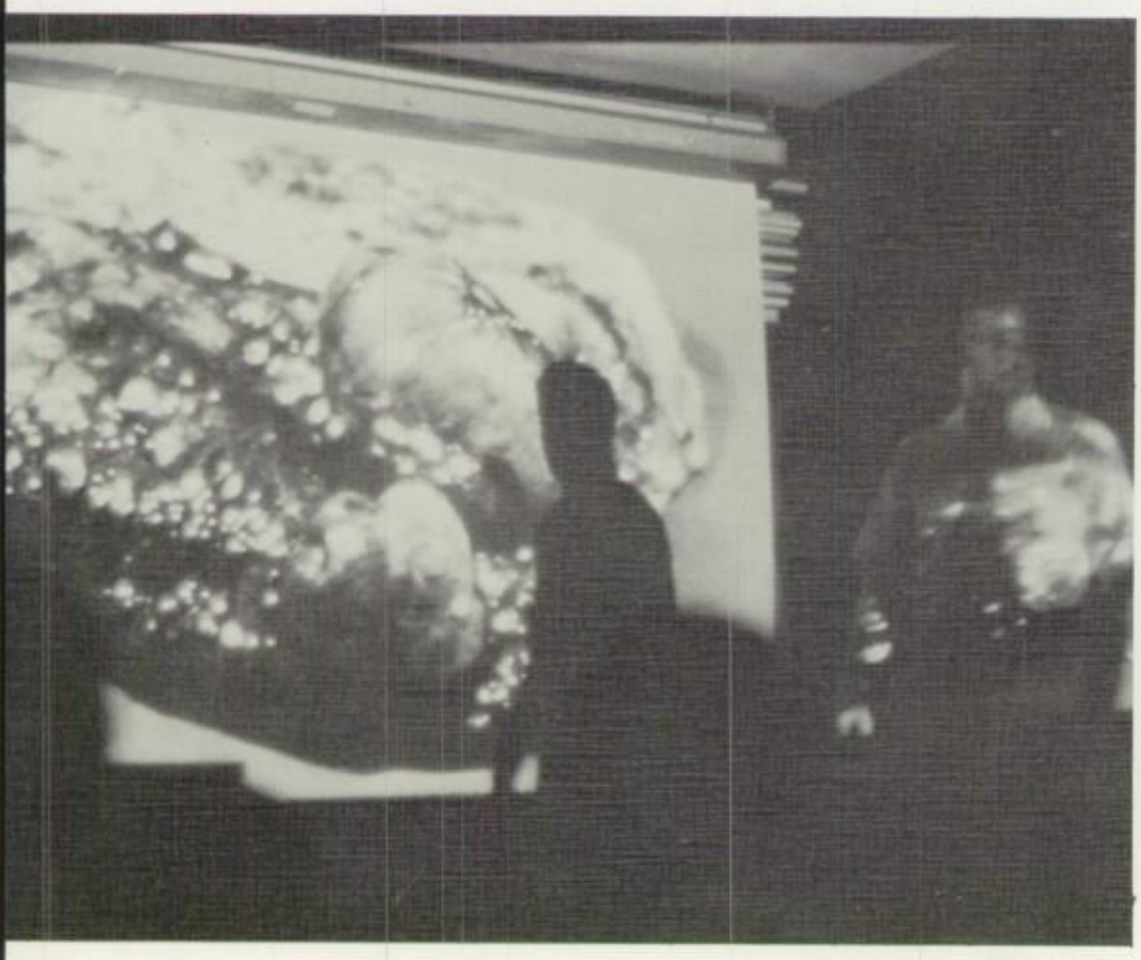
Mr. Adamo (right) instructed one of his students, Sue Norlander, as to why the correct braking method is important.

Driver Education Classes Teach Safety to Students

Driver's Education is one of the best attended classes at Maine South. The purpose of the course is to produce safe drivers, educated in all the safety rules. This course has very little drain on the taxpayers money because all six cars used are free from Park Ridge agencies. A bill that took effect on January 1, 1972 states that when a student gets a driver's permit, he will be able to drive with someone who has had his license for one year. Thus, with younger drivers, Driver's Education is an important part of the Maine South curriculum as well as a course that students look forward to in their junior or senior year.



Health Education Relates To The Future's Adults

This year the Health Department has educated students to the fullest degree possible by giving pupils a more advanced knowledge of anatomy and physiology. A required course for freshmen and sophomores, these classes offer subject matter which is relevant to today's youth. Mental health, drugs, smoking, diseases, alcohol, nutrition and family life are among the topics covered in class. The teachers help to make the material interesting by using films and other audio-visual aids. Discussions also help to answer students' questions. Certainly the health classes are valuable to every student.

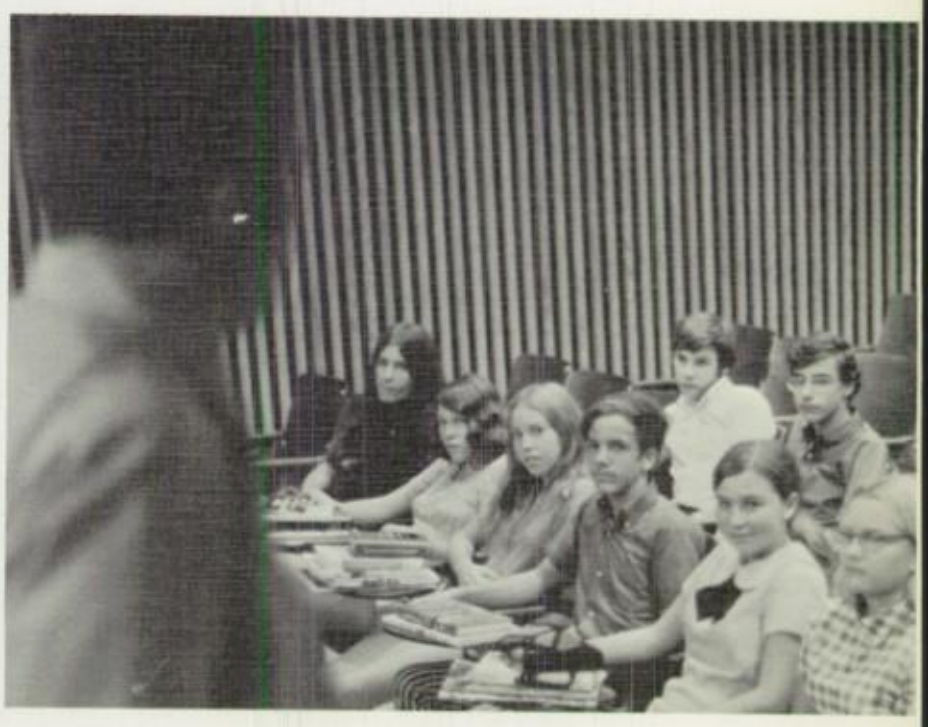
Mr. Braddy (below) explained to one of his sophomore classes the different terms used for the parts of the human body.



Industrial Education Offers Experience in Many Fields

The Industrial Education Department once again worked in developing the talents of interested students in fields varying from Auto Technology to Architecture. Mr. Stanley Bentall, department chairman, stated that this department has tried to expose students to a wider variety of materials and problem solving situations in industry and other related areas.

Due to cut-backs in expenditures, the Industrial Ed Department was forced to change its regular three year program into a two year, more generalized, yet intensified study. Mr. Bentall is hopeful that the revised program will continue to turn out top students.

Home Economics Teaches Skills Vital to Family Life

The Home Economics Department of Maine South trains girls to become future homemakers by teaching them skills vital to family living. Among the major courses offered are those consisting of sewing, cooking, psychology, child development, home planning and interior design. After giving proof of an ability in Foods-Clothing I, girls may be promoted to Foods or Clothing II and later to Clothing III. In Psychology for Living, students learn to understand the behavior of fellow human beings; in Child Care Occupations students observe how a child grows and changes. In Home Planning and Interior Design, students construct a model home, displaying knowledge of decorating the inside of a house. All courses instruct girls in preparing for family living and for the future.

Experimentation in Design Is Stressed in Art Classes

This year has proved to be another successful one for Maine South's Art Department. Through the combined efforts of both teachers and students, creative talents were discovered, developed and refined. Facilities were numerous, allowing students the opportunity to experiment in different medias, thus leaving more freedom for individual expression.

The area of art is so vast that it is the feeling of South's art teachers that classes should encompass as many facets of art as possible. Classes are offered in sculpture, photography, sketching, and general art courses set up according to degrees of capability. Maine South students are indeed fortunate for the facilities and teachers available to them in a field which seems to be becoming increasingly popular every year.

Music Department Strives To Develop Student Talent

Students expression in music was the main purpose of the Music Department this year. Courses in both instrumental and vocal music were designed to bring out the talents of the students. In the area of vocal music, singers began their studies in the Boys' and Girls' Choruses. From there, second-year boys moved directly to Concert Choir, while girls advanced to Girls' Glee. The Concert Choir gave several concerts and special performances during the year, and the Mixed Ensemble traveled to various singing engagements for clubs and organizations. The instrumental branch of the department featured the Concert Orchestra, which gave seasonal concerts and played for the spring musicals, and the Concert Band, which divided its talents into the Marching Band, Pep Band, and Stage Band. The Music Department was extremely popular with Maine South audiences. audiences.

Candy Slaters (left) assumed a serious role when she played her clarinet with South's marching band during half-time.

Concert Orchestra Makes Audiences Aware of Skill

Concert Orchestra, a group of South's most experienced musicians, tallied up achievements throughout an impressive year. In October, they traveled to a DePaul University Workshop, where they ranked an easy first place. Orchestra boasted "star" performers including Marian Sagona, who played a piano concerto at the fall concert. For the musical, Hello Dolly, the dignified orchestra members transformed into "pit-players" and enjoyed the switch. Girls' Glee Ensemble, although a relatively small vocal group, produced a surprisingly broad sound. Audiences at both of their concerts were captivated by the girls. This year, instead of the two ensembles, girls' and boys', Mr. Bell created a Mixed Ensemble. The combining of talents proved enjoyable for the audience and participants too.

Past and Future Combines To Highlight Concert Band

This year's Concert Band helped make up the largest marching band in South's history. The 123 strong band was the highlight of half-time with the addition of a flag corps, color guard squad and featured twirler, Krista McLean. The band also presented a Band-O-Rama in which half-time numbers were performed in a concert situation. Two formal concerts featured a wide range of selections.

Treble Choir was a mixture of junior and senior girls. Due perhaps to the encouragement and patience of Mr. Flechsig, the group proved popular with audiences at both Fall and Spring concerts. Often the girls enhanced these performances with rhythm accompaniment. Boys' Chorus practiced every eighth period and was open to all boys interested in singing. Mr. Bell taught this group the appreciation and fundamentals of music. Many of these boys were offered a place in the Concert Choir next year. year.

Concert Choir Maintains a Precedent of High Quality

Girls' Glee was the largest girls' vocal group in the department. Their sound was a unique blending of over ninety voices. Concert Choir represented the cream of South's vocal talents. Membership was considered a hard-earned honor for all participants. Diligent practice was necessary in order to maintain the high quality of past choirs. The ever-popular Stage Band delighted audiences at both the V-Show and during Maine South assemblies. Once again, they charmed their audience during their portion of the spring band concert.

The Eyrie Staff Displays a New Creative Yearbook

After much deliberation, this year's Eyrie staff decided to create a book embodying the idea that the individual is more than just A Face in the Crowd. Guided by Miss Singer and Lynne Poggensee, the staff worked to learn a new technique in creating layouts—the mosaic layout. With the help of photographers Mike Charewicz and Greg Pfister, the staff was able to obtain special effects needed to create their theme. Four co-ordinators, seven section heads, and eight assistants worked diligently to complete material for four deadlines. The entire staff looked forward to the annual banquet at which looked forward to the annual banquet, at which time next year's staff was announced, and the arrival of the 1972 books. The highlight of their arrival was the reception of the cover, which for the first time displayed all of South's colors.

Southwords Reflects Each Phase of Student Activities

The Publications organizations at Maine South have three main branches: Southwords, the newspaper; News Bureau; and the Creative Writing Magazine.

The newspaper had a deadline to meet every two weeks, and meet it they did. The main sections of the newspaper included the opinions section, which featured letters to the editor and open letters to Southwords; immediate news, which dealt with current events; sports, which highlighted both events and individual athletes; and news-in-depth, which probed issues of major importance to students, and featured reviews of current movies and music. Into every issue went work in layout, photography, articles, and headlines.

Juicy Leaves and News Bureau Show Imagination

News Bureau took charge of sending releases to the local papers, to keep the community informed about events at South and in the district. News Bureau also sent articles to the papers highlighting outstanding seniors. The Bureau prompted the posting of this sign in their office: "Come on in — no one outside the News Bureau bites!"

The Creative Writing Magazine staff was composed of students who served as judges of literature and artwork submitted by fellow students. They produced Juicy Leaves, an anthology of the best works of students contributors.

Initiates of Honor Society Show Outstanding Abilities

Maine South's National Honor Society is composed of the top ranking juniors and seniors. The junior class may initiate up to the top five percent, while the seniors must be in the top fifteen percent. In addition, juniors must have a record of all A and B semester grades and the seniors must have a B average. Grades, however, are not the only requirement for membership. The judges, faculty members, also consider service, leadership, and character.

Even though National Honor Society is mainly just an honorary organization, it holds an annual Taffy Apple Sale to finance the club's expenses, such as the tea and initiation. This year's initiation was held on April 25 with Charles Keller as the guest speaker.

Good Will and Friendliness Stressed by Honor Groups

Brotherhood Society, consisting of students who showed friendliness toward others, made a collection of funds for Northwest Aid to the Retarded and sponsored a Taffy Apple sale. M Club held their annual M Club-Faculty basketball game in which the faculty won again. One of the main attractions of this year was the arena play, sponsored by Thespian Society. This honorary also sponsored a scholarship, a spring banquet, and an initiation. The annual Share the Fare was again conducted by AFS to help pay the way for future Foreign Exchange Students.

South's Honorary Students Show Interests and Goals

This year, students who were recognized for their outstanding work in various fields also sponsored events. Tri M required a B average in music as well as two years in a performing group. This honorary sponsored the Kiwanis "Peanut Day" sale and the annual picnic. Outstanding work on publications and ranking in the top third of their class were the two major requirements for Quill and Scroll. Members attended an annual banquet in the spring where next year's staffs were announced. Sigma Chi Sigma members were chosen by their ability to pass a reading test with a 90 percentile. National Forensic League recognized students who had won honors on the Debate team or in Contest Speakers. The Illinois District conducted a tournament each year, with winners advancing to the National.

Our Honoraries Recognize Students' Accomplishments

This year, Maine South was again represented by outstanding students in scholastic abilities. Students who rated high on an important standardized test were chosen as National Merit Finalists, and they were then allowed to compete on a national level. Our It's Academic Team put forth all its efforts and turned out excellent showings against competitors. Above average students in science were allowed to take part in the Science Seminar, where they pursued their own scientific interests independently. Maine South was honored this year to be the only school in the state to have three winners in the National Council of Teachers of English competition. These students were judged after taking a three hour English essay. Maine South can certainly be proud of their honorary students in all fields of endeavor.

FACES IN ACTION

Musical Hello Dolly Wows All Maine South Audiences

Hello Dolly, a musical derived from the play The Matchmaker, is about a widow, Dolly Levi, who likes to think of herself as a marriage broker. She is outgoing, attractive, and very much liked by most men. Throughout the play, she tries to dissuade Horace Vandergelder from any interest in other women because she secretly wishes to marry him herself.

Teresa Pfister and Margie Gibson were both excellent Dollys, who sang and talked their way into the heart of Horace (Bill Sensenbrenner and Chuck Burmeister) as well as the hearts of the audiences. Other leaders were also very well done, with the audience loving sweet Mrs. Malloy and Minnie Fay and laughing at the outrageous Ernistina Money. The scenery, costumes, cast, choruses and crew all contributed to make Dolly the hit that it was.

Bill Sensenbrenner (right) was appalled yet disappointed to discover Karla Jennings wasn't as lovely as he had thought.

From Swanee to Snoopy, South Remembers When

This year's V-Show was the most outstanding show that Maine South has had. Even though the theme was "Remember When," the show attracted children as well as adults. Connecting the theme throughout the show was the narrator, Nancy Mellon, who opened with a word to the audience to sit back and relax while pictures of bygone days flashed on the screen. The acts ranged from the Andrew Sisters to the Beatles, from Swanee to Snoopy. One of the ideas which carried the show was the new idea of trunk, which was a troop of actors of various talents who did blackouts and were added to acts to round them off. Another new idea was acts and sets in the pit, close to the audience. The smoothness of the show and the acts relating to the theme made this year's show better than ever.

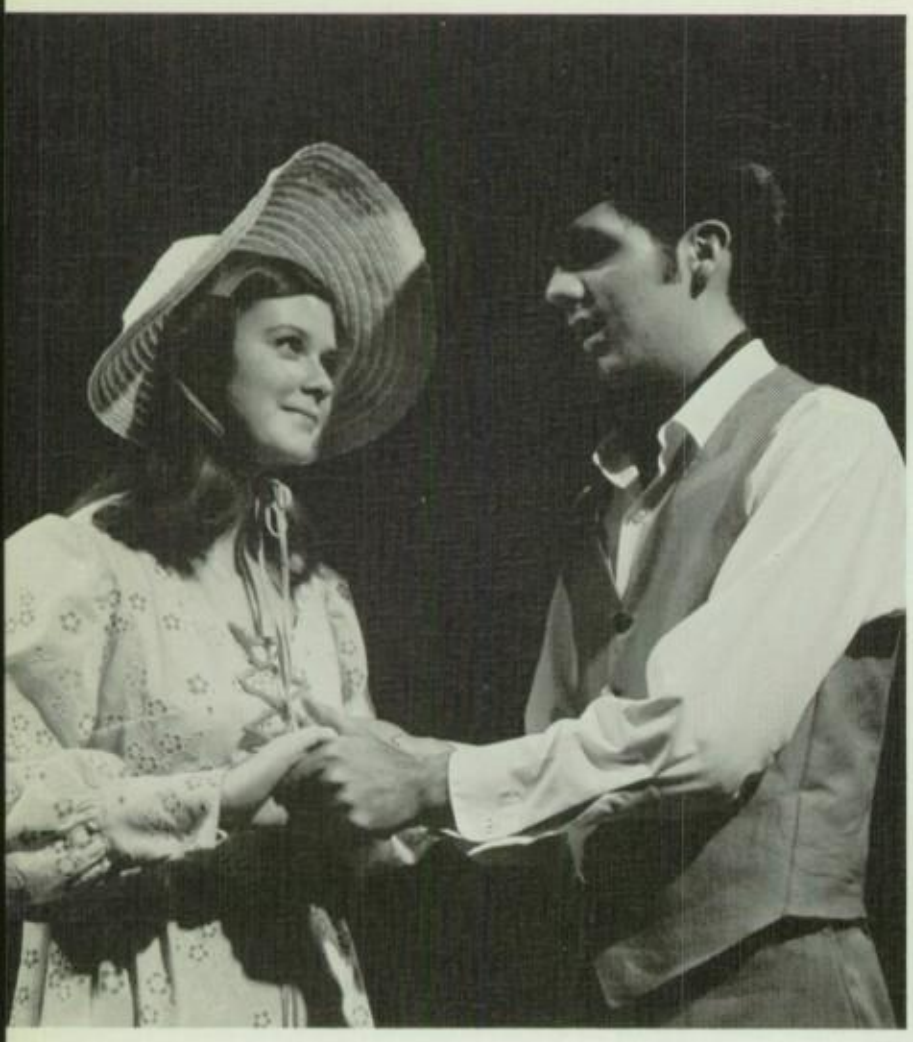
Death of a Salesman Has a Great Amount of Talent

This year Death of a Salesman, sponsored by the senior class, turned out to be a successful production. The character of Willie Loman was professionally portrayed by Rick Spatafora, and Sandy Schramel played the part of Linda, his wife. Their sons, Biff and Happy, were played by Rick Tinaglia and Dick Stinson. Strong bonds between characters were weakened by the overshadowing conflict between Willie and life. The play was a tragedy in that Willie's dream, which he believed in with all his might, was his whole life and eventually caused his downfall. The talent displayed in Death of a Salesman was so great that the play represented Maine South in the district tournament.



Auntie Mame, who was portrayed by Katy Davlin, was approached by her suitor who finally asked for her hand (above).

Wild, Carefree, and Funny is a Visit to Auntie Mame

In this year's arena play, Auntie Mame, Katy Davlin portrayed a happy-go-lucky, zany woman. As a member of the audience, you were swept along in a whirlwind of energy, excitement, and emotion. Mame loved life and people, and taught the people she encountered to live life to its fullest. To her, life was a banquet and most people were starving to death.

The play opened in Mame's parlor during a cocktail party, Her nephew Patrick (Bob Leonard) came into Mame's life to stay. Mame, with her strange philosophies, was determined to open new doors for him. Her warmth and charm had a very special effect on all who came in contact with her. Even as Mame aged, Patrick's son Michael found that a visit to his Auntie Mame could be wild, carefree, and fun.

Students Relax and Enjoy South's Variety of Dances

The Kickoff Dance was the first of many dances which highlighted the school year. Sponsored by Pep Club, the dance featured the crowning of the Spirit Queens and entertainment. Soon after came the popular Homecoming Dance, which gave everyone an opportunity to honor the queen and the football team and to enjoy themselves. Santa Claus highlighted the Boys' Club Christmas Formal, and in March the Girls' Club gave the girls a chance to choose their date with the Girls' Choice Dance. The theme "Close to You" fit in perfectly with the overall mood. As Spring approached, many students were looking forward to the Junior and Senior Proms. All of these dances added to the many events that the students will always remember.

Homecoming Week Filled With Hard Work and Fun

Homecoming week was spirit-filled and exciting as plans for Saturday's activities began to take shape. Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears spoke at the assembly about drug abuse. Soon after, Jay Rasmussen gave a pep-talk to promote enthusiasm for the game.

At half-time, the Queen, Barb Steffen, received her crown from 1971's Homecoming Queen, April Everding. The sophomore float was awarded third place, the freshman float won second, and Pep Club won first with "Joe Cool says 'no way, Spartans, no way' " Distributive Education won the car float with the title of "Hawks press Spartans." Certainly this year's Homecoming will be remembered by everyone.

Assembly Begins a Week of Homecoming Festivities

Students showed their school spirit at Homecoming by voting for their favorite queen candidate, participating in float-building, and attending the football game and dance. At the Homecoming assembly, the students heard Gale Sayers speak and later were entertained by Brad Henrickson and Al Jahn. Throughout the week members of classes and clubs worked hard to make their float the best. By Saturday morning, every float was ready for the parade. Despite our afternoon loss on the field, high spirits prevailed at the dance, where Queen Barb Steffen received the traditional autographed football along with a bouquet of roses.

Student Council Discusses Apathy and Reconstruction

This year Council stressed the idea of students getting involved in school government. Student Council sponsored V-Show and appropriated $200 to the Youth Coalition fund. Issues such as open campus, after-burners, and new structural organization of Council were also discussed throughout the year.

Plans for the 1972-73 officers began with the election assembly where each candidate told his ideas concerning several issues. Speakers stressed ideas such as pollution problems, public relations, reformation of the disciplinary system, and open campus. Entertainment was provided by graduates Chris Mahffey and Bill Mellberg who imitated famous personalities such as President Nixon, David Brinkley, Hubert Humphrey, and Jack Benney.

Pep Club Girls Have Fun Spreading Spirit in School

Pep Club's Homecoming float of Snoopy, "Joe Cool says 'No Way Spartans, No Way,' " captured first place as well as the hearts of the Hawk fans attending the football festivities. The successful Kick-Off Dance, "We've Only Just Begun," was a memorable evening for all who attended. The gregarious members of Pep Club Council sold shakers, buttons, t-shirts, programs, and balloons at all home football games. Certainly the twenty-two members of Council spread spirit by sponsoring four sport weeks throughout the year. And, continuing the tradition begun last year, the girls decorated the lockers of varsity team members with individual "good luck" signs. To inform all the students of future sports activities, Pep Club made calendars which they placed in homerooms. And to cap off a full year, the girls sponsored an Awards Banquet at which outstanding members were honored.

Sports-Oriented Clubs are Able to Boost Membership

A few clubs at South were sports-oriented. They combined the athletic interests or hobbies of members with traditional meetings and activities. Ski Club was obviously very popular this year, boasting a membership of about 300. The group planned weekends at Boyne Mountain, Indianhead, Devilshead, and Powderhorn. Some Friday nights were spend on the slopes of Wilmot or Alpine Valley. The Wrestlerettes, girls who assisted at Wrestling meets, helped promote enthusiasm with posters announcing future meets. Claire Nelson, president, also wrote reviews of meets for the local papers. Students who enjoyed horse-back riding participated in the Cavaliers. When weather permitted, club members took a chartered bus to local stables.

Possibilities for the Future Intrigue Clubs' Participants

Some clubs attracted students who were particularly interested in a field for their future. Students who aspired to be doctors, nurses, or physical therapists were members of Medical Careers Club. The club's agenda was filled with activities, including field trips to several hospitals and lectures by guest speakers. Building and Design Club took a field trip which was called a City Planning Tour, where the boys viewed buildings designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and modern structures like the Hancock Center. Cooperative Work Training club was comprised of students who held training jobs in local industries. Besides regular meetings, the club planned a bowling party and a picnic. Diversified Occupations Club aided members by arranging sessions in which they discussed students' jobs.

Club Members Combine Learning with Enjoyment

Future occupations were on the minds of many Maine South students this year. Several clubs offered membership in areas of specialized interest. Home Economics Club sponsored an International Dinner and a Mother-Daughter Dessert as well as a car float which they built for Homecoming. Food Occupations Club planned a field trip, while the twenty-eight members of Child Care Occupations participated in money-making projects along with a field trip. The major event on the agenda of Art Club was the Art Fair in which members displayed their own works. In general, clubs such as these, which combined learning and enjoyment, aided students who had focused on a field for their futures.

Several Clubs Help Teach Students to Communicate

The communication clubs gave students opportunities to exchange ideas. To the Debate team, November through March meant weekly tension-filled tournaments. Music, another facet of communication, was brought to the student lounge by the WMTH staff. With seventy members, they were able to expertly tape and broadcast most athletic events, interview programs, music concerts, and other special events. The Film Society helped students communicate through movies such as A Poppy is Also a Flower, Citizen Kane, and Battle of Algiers. Perfection in speaking was the goal of South's Contest Speakers, Tournaments in Niles, Deerfield, Dundee, and other cities gave members a chance to test their abilities against competitors. These clubs offered students both enjoyment and education.

Future Occupations Form Bases for Careers Clubs

Clubs that prepare students for future occupations held many interesting activities throughout the year. Business Club, sponsored by Mrs. Dieter and Miss Grimm, gave a Christmas party for children of the faculty. Future Teachers Association was busy attending the FTA Convention, educational workshops, and student teaching at elementary schools. The thirty-two members of Distributive Education Club, led by Mr. Hommerding, planned numerous outings also. The club participated in local, area, state, and national competition in public speaking and sales advertising. Civics projects and an Employer-Employee Banquet were also on Distributive Ed's agenda. Office Occupations combined pleasure with work by sponsoring several social events such as a swimming party and sleigh rides, as well as the usual educational field trips. Their trips included excursions to the National Office Education Association in Columbus, Ohio, and the Illinois Office Occupations State Conference.

Students in Language Clubs Seek Expanded Knowledge

The language offerings at Maine South were not limited to the classrooms. Students interested in a particular language could join one of the language clubs to learn more about the country's culture and to speak the language in a casual atmosphere. The Italian Club was sponsored by Mrs. Galle, and its eleven members met weekly. French Club gathered its sixty three members together for such activities as seeing French movies and visiting restaurants that boast haute cuisine. Their Christmas party featured genuine native French food, cooked by several members. German Club, sponsored by Mrs. Schultz, had seventy six members who participated in seasonal events such as a German Christmas Party and a spring "Picnick." The Spanish Club's main event of the year was its Christmas festival, at which members broke the traditional pinata. Russian Club took in several local offerings of Russian cultural presentations, including a ballet presentation.

Students Display Enjoyable Hobbies and Skills in Clubs

Several clubs at Maine South offered activities related to hobbies. The Coin Club sponsored monthly auctions at which members could buy, sell and trade the coins they had collected. At weekly meetings the collectors could discuss exchanges and participate in coin browses. The Chess Club also held weekly meetings, at which members challenged each other to matches in quest of the championship title. A new club this year, Folk Club, boasted a membership of thirty-five. At first they concentrated on learning new music, with the prospect of giving a performance in the latter part of the year. They also expected to be involved in making a video tape for an English program on American Folk Music. Biology Club concentrated its efforts on problems of the environment. Paper drives and glass recycling were among their community activities. They also had trips to areas of ecological interest.

Students in Service Clubs Perform Beneficial Duties

The service clubs at Maine South saw more action this year than ever before. The Girls' Club could boast a successful Senior-Faculty tea, with attendance well over 400. The freshman mother-daughter dessert attracted many girls and gave their mothers a chance to have an inside look at Maine South. Their main event of the year was the Girls' Choice dance in March, a turnabout event that was one of the best-attended affairs of the year. Boys' Club in its turn sponsored the Christmas Formal and raised funds through community car washes. The Key Club, another service organization, operated the paperback bookstore, located in the cafeteria. A club that was initiated last year, Local History Club, had its members make frequent field trips to local areas. In the spring the members took the Galena tour and also entered the Faces in History Contest.

Cheerleaders Contribute to South's Sports Involvement

Throughout the year, the cheerleaders played an important role in all of South's extra-curricular activities. Their enthusiastic routines were the result of long hours of work and continuous direction of Miss Goll. During V-Show all of the cheerleaders performed to Swanee in a vaudeville act. The enormous production was executed with excellent coordination.

This year the varsity squad made many unnoticed contributions towards sports involvement. For instance, the cheerleaders embroidered wristbands for the basketball players and decorated the varsity football players' homes before the Homecoming game. Together, all squads strived towards cheering South's teams on to victory.

The Hawkettes' Enchanting Routines Delight Audiences

This year our Pom-Pom girls worked very hard and surpassed everyone's expectations. For an hour or more, four days a week, they worked on their pep, coordination, and rhythm. Their reward came from the applause which they received not only at Maine South but also at such places as the Chicago Stadium and DePaul University.

George M. was the theme for Pom-Pom's act in V-Show this year. They showed a change in style by tap-dancing to the medley of Cohen tunes. The Hawkettes' Choreographer and sponsor, Miss Bobrich, helped them produce one of the top acts in the show.

Ecstasy Holds the Soul Is Theme for Orchesis Club

This year Miss Babka directed the outstanding Orchesis Club. The group worked from the beginning to the end of the year, starting with V-Show and ending up with assemblies in the junior high schools in the area. The V-Show number was performed to the tune of Hard Day's Night, and the performer's costumes were orange, yellow, and black. In the middle of the year they put on Ecstasy Holds the Soul, a concert which featured modern dance, ballet, jazz, and Afrodance. During the concert, live groups and singers performed to the various routines. This was only their second concert, but with its success came the promise of another next year.

Leaders and Class Teams Utilize Many Sports Skills

The Junior-Senior Leader Program plays an important part in all of South's physical education classes. As juniors, the girls are trained by Miss Pierce to officiate sports, help with squad practices, and become better skilled in all areas of class leadership. Once the girls are senior leaders, they apply these techniques towards their specific classes. The Leader Program is one example of the physical education training provided by South.

The competitors in the class basketball and volleyball teams displayed their excellent skills received in nine weeks of practice. Participants on the teams were selected on a tryout basis. Both teams represented expert performances as well as outstanding sportsmanship.

GRA Hosts Playnights and Intramural Athletic Events

The Girls' Recreational Association has been actively aiding Maine South girls in extra-curricular sports activities. The twenty-six members of the club, along with Miss Finneran, planned several athletic and fund-raising events. They held both co-ed and restricted playnights at various times throughout the year.

Intramurals played an important role in the GRA. Participants in afternoon basketball and volleyball teams received awards at the annual May Awards Banquet. For the banquet, members of GRA raised enough money to cover the cost of the awards by selling stationery and concessions at football games. Besides the final awards night, GRA sponsored the yearly stocking drive, had an act called "The Good Ship Lollipop" in V-Show, and held the annual slumber party. GRA members acquired new uniforms consisting of red skirts and cream sweaters and which helped to boost club members' spirit.

Sports Minded Girls Find Pool and Courts Enjoyable

Tennis and swimming were two of the many interscholastic sports offered to Maine South girls. These sports gave students a chance to demonstrate and better their skills and techniques. Each eager girl was given an opportunity to participate, but only the best were chosen to be team members. Miss Schultze, swimming coach, and Miss Albrecht, tennis coach, both worked diligently to develop their teams to the highest potential.

The tennis team, numbering fourteen, practiced twice weekly, while swimmers practiced three times a week. Both teams played seven schools during the fall season and each tried its best to bring credit to Maine South by enthusiastic participation and good sportsmanship.

Intramural Sports Teams Contend for Fun and Title

This year those girls who were not to be left behind in the athletic department participated in various extra-curricular activities. The girls' track team took part in broad jumping, high jumping, dashes, hurdles, and the 440 relay. The gymnastics team practiced every Wednesday after school, performing routines on the trampoline, the balance beam, and the unevens. Also, they displayed outstanding skills in free exercise and vaulting. The volleyball team, sponsored a Sportsday and walked off with wins in two categories. The badminton team of nineteen players competed against six other schools and participated in an Invitational Badminton Tournament at the end of the year.

Marlins Express Creativity in Outstanding Serendipity

Marlin, Maine South's water ballet organization, helped the members to develop their coordination and swimming abilities. These graceful swimmers practiced regularly to achieve synchronization and the best of form. In the fall, Marlin accepted eighteen new members. Together, all forty-five Marlins practiced regularly to learn the new skills necessary for show parts. Tryouts were held in January and February, and in the last week of April the girls performed Serendipity, which was a tremendous success.

In May a select group of Marlin members were invited to perform as guests at Wisconsin State University where they swam their traditional routine to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Perseverance and Rivalry: Traits of Varsity Players

This year's Varsity football team once again ended the season with a satisfactory record in spite of their tough competition. After hearing Gale Sayers speak at a spirited assembly, the team charged into the Homecoming game with high hopes. The Hawks battled evenly with a highly ranked Glenbrook North team throughout the contest, but the final count found South on the short side. Co-captains Tony Rodham and Jay Rassmussen paced the offense throughout the season, while MVP Lou Coletto led the defense into battle. Head Coach Schmidt said that in spite of the 5 and 4 record, he felt that the Hawks were in every game.

Varsity Harriers Chalk Up Nine-Meet Winning Streak

The Maine South Varsity cross country team enjoyed another successful season this year as they streaked to a second place slot in the conference standings. Led by Captain Tom Starck, the Harriers were off to a powerful early-season start as, paced by MVP Kevin Huffman, they won their first nine meets and a first place trophy at the Centers Meet. Typical of the brilliant style which the Hawks exhibited in all their performances was their second dual meet of the year, a staggering 15-50 triumph over Conant High School. Other highlights of the 1971 season included first and third place trophies from the Maine West and the Addison Trail Invitationals.

Varsity Sockmen Skillfully Steal Fourth Place Honors

Hustle and dedication were prime characteristics of South's past Varsity soccer teams, and this year was no exception. Led by Captain and MVP Jeff Craig, the Varsity conquered several tough opponents including Maine East and Waukegan High Schools.

After their triumph over Maine East, the team was placed in the winners' circle of their conference, but unfortunately, with their subsequent consecutive losses to Niles West and Lake Forest, the sockmen were only able to take fourth place. "Still," said Head Coach Tilley, "we've had twice as many wins compared to last year's games, and next season may be very promising."

Bill Bradshaw (left) rushed at an opposing player and tried to kick the ball into position for a chance to score a goal.

Varsity Roundballers Thrill Fans with Win After Win

Once again the Varsity basketball team showed its dynamic strength on the court, piling up a dynamic 23-2 record. They began the season by demolishing Crystal Lake 100-32, and the big red machine just continued to roll along, halted only once during the regular season by the fast-breaking Aurora East team. The Maine South juggernauts continued their winning ways into the divisional tournament, shelacking Luther North 116-40, a new school record, and romping over Ridgewood 80-51. MVP Jerry Jones and Captains Rick Kucera and Tom Spicer were outstanding in both games, together scoring over half the points, with Greg Ciezadlo, Bill Harbeck and others making up the difference. In the tough sectionals, the Hawks won out over St. Pat's, but finally bowed to a deft LaGrange team. Coach Brady commented that the season was "outstanding" and the fellows played "great ball from first to last."

Varsity Fencers Take 3rd Place in State Tournament

An undefeated season just barely slipped out of the reach of this year's Varsity fencing team. Maine South's foilers, after suffering their two defeats of the season to New Trier West, went on to rack up a string of ten consecutive victorious meets and a second place trophy in the UICC Invitational. The fencers had an additional win at their first meet of the season to give them an overall record of nine wins as compared with only two losses. The Hawks' record enabled them to travel downstate to participate in the championships and to bring home a third place trophy. Outstanding foilers were Captain Larry Robbins and Most Valuable Player Mike Rusin, who won second in the state meet.

Varsity Gymnasts Achieve Good Form, Fine Records

The Varsity gymnasts had an above average season, ending with a respectable 10-4 record. Many of the flexers were outstanding in their events and only stiff competition in the regional tournament prevented some of them from making state. Most Valuable Gymnast Dirk Martin along with Keith Bocek, outstanding parallel bar men, were the only representatives in the downstate competition. The squad was hurting from the beginning when several of last year's members failed to rejoin. Coach Riccitelli commented that he was "disappointed" with those who did not return but added "the kids that stuck with it were excellent." He was also quite pleased with the great performances turned in by several sophomores.

Despite a Losing Season, Wrestlers are Dedicated

The Varsity wrestling squad this year grappled to an uncommonly ill-fated season as they finished with a disappointing 1-13 record. The team definitely felt the absence of last year's graduation matmen, but strived to overcome the weak spots in the lineup. Sophomore Jeff Mau acquired the assignment as starting 98-lb. grappler, while Mark Roer replaced Tom Magas, conference star, in the 138-lb slot. Head Coach Ziemek expressed his natural frustration with the season results but cheerfully stated that he "was pleased with the outstanding dedication" displayed by each member of the team. He went on to say that there "were many fine individual performances," such as those of MVP Tony Ruggeri who won the most take downs and the most pins and Captain Robert Olker.

Swimmers Direct Efforts Toward Breaking Records

Record-breaking was a major factor in many of the swimmers' performances this season, and the Maine South Varsity tankers were able to compile a six-win record. Several of the team members qualified for the state competition. Most Valuable Swimmer Norm Pussehl took a third in state in the 50-yard free-style event, while the relay team took ninth. Participants in the relay team included Brad Kozie, Ted Johnson, Bob McCullough, Norm Pussehl, and Mike Cesario. While the relay team was outstanding, many individual performers also turned in fine records. Tri-Captains for the team included Norm Pussehl, Ted Johnson, and Keith Schalk.

Track Team Wins Fifth Straight Conference Title

The Varsity track team clinched for the fifth time in a row the conference championship, as many outstanding athletes contributed their talents to the team's success. Tom Starck broke records as he sped to consistent wins in the 880-yard run. Pat McNamara converted his football talents to track in the 440-yard dash. Both McNamara and Starck were members of the Indoor Conference Championship mile relay team. Jim Staunton successfully defended his conference title in the shot put, while Kevin Huffman used his cross-country talents for the one and two mile runs. Rob Lossman, despite an injury early in the season, was conference champion in the high jump. The pole vaulting event saw action from Rick Luft and Tom Towne, while the mile relay team of Starck, Maloney, McNamara, and Cheves used its high-speed talent to win in meet after meet.

Varsity Baseball Provides Fans with Exciting Games

Once again Maine South's fine Varsity baseball team provided the school with another exciting season's competition and numerous examples of superb playing skill. Even though the Hawks did not quite make it all the way to the top of their league during the 1971 season, the individual players were outstanding in the respective positions and the diamondmen as a whole at least showed the spirit and ambition to take their division during a hotly competitive pennant race. The 1972 season, with the addition of sophomore players to the Varsity squad and the return of many junior lettermen to the team promised to be an exciting one.

Varsity Netmen Have Fine Year with Sophomore Help

The Varsity tennis team had a good season despite the fact that there were several places in the starting lineup that were weakened by the absence of last year's graduating players. Yet, this season's enthusiastic squad did a fine job in keeping up with the outstanding achievements of past teams. George Mulopulos, Bob Ellsworth, and Todd Onderdonk pooled their various talents to form a practically unbeatable unit, while numerous skilled sophomores were called upon to perform on the Varsity. Coach Kent commented that the main strategy behind this move was "to build toward the future by giving the sophomores more experience at the Varsity level," and added, "They did a great job."

Members of Varsity Golf Team Display Much Skill

Some important golfing qualities were demonstrated by Maine South golfers in the 1971 season. Accuracy, timing, and a steady eye were some of the requirements for the team members. Also important was the team's real desire to improve their scores in competition with other schools. On the golf courses or just practicing at school, the players showed talent for all types of shots. Coach Ross helped out by giving necessary hints on form and precision, while also coaching the boys on rules. Several returning lettermen lent their maturity and experience to the team, while new members added strength.

This year's Sophomore football team fared a little better than the Varsity squad and ended with a respectable 6 and 4 record. At the Annual Fall Sports Awards Night, Tim Starck was voted captain and Keith Skaathun walked off with the MVP honors. Head Coach Walters said that the team played fine this year and that they always made a better showing against the stronger teams. Head Coach Ziemek led the Freshman A squad to a 4 and 2 record. Head Coach Kochalka of the Freshman B team also finished the season with a winning record. Both freshman teams showed much potential and Maine South will have strong football teams in the future.

Frosh, Soph Cross Country Talent Apparent During '71

This year's Frosh-Sophomore cross country team kept up the winning tradition of Maine South Harriers. The Sophomore squad did quite well in conference, tallying an 8-5 season record, while they placed third in the Maine West Invitational. Coach Drennan combined his athletic knowledge with fine coaching ability and well-developed talents of his players to produce the successful team. MVP Daniel Dohn and Captain Robert Swaback were two examples of the squad's hard-working runners. The Freshmen team totaled a 5-5 record for the season in their individual meets.

Sophomores, Frosh Display Potential Winning Capability

This year's Sophomore soccer team took an example from the Varsity's spirit and sense of competition. Although their overall record of 2-11-3 was not quite up to their potential capabilities, each individual game was a well-played contest filled with skill and determination. Hardworking MVP David Krumwiede, along with Co-Captains Tom Zdeblick and Kirk Machon, were prime examples of the team's spirit.

The Frosh soccer team showed great future potential. These novices defeated several tough challengers and boasted an overall 5-5-1 record. MVP Marshal Austin and Captain Barry Lorenz led the hard-working squad.

Every Level of Basketball Can Boast Winning Record

The power of all Maine South basketball teams was apparent this year as all four undergraduate teams consistently won. An example of the strength of all Hawk teams was the JV, which, with Captain Tony Reibel and MVP Jim Hirsch setting the speed of South's attack, allowed only a solitary loss in a full season of eighteen games. The sophomores, too, were no exception to the rule of fine playing, as the whole team, and especially MVP Pete Schmelzer and Captains John Reilly and Rich Magnuson showed other teams how conference championships are won, even though they themselves were edged out into second place.

The Maine South domination of Central Suburban League basketball was made complete by the excellent showings of both freshman teams, as the A team, finished with a record of 17-2, while the B team, terminated with 14-1.

Underclass Fencers Prove They Have High Potentials

The Freshmen-Sophomore fencers came close to duplicating the excellent effort of the varsity team, but fell a little short in their attempt for a perfect season. Even with the loss of some of last year's frosh-soph foilers to this year's varsity, however, the Hawk underclassmen managed to compile a total record of seven wins against only three losses. With such individuals as Most Valuable Jim Herring and Captain Ken Taylor leading the way into the season's meets, the Hawks not only proved themselves this year but showed the potential to produce future winning varsity teams.

Frosh-Soph Gymnasts Both End with Winning Records

The Sophomore flexers had a satisfactory season, leaving their mark on the record book with a 8-7 total. The squad had several strong players, some of which competed at the Varsity level. Jim LaBue was excellent at free exercise. Captain Mark Lundberg performed well on the still rings, while Most Valuable Jim Kaucich starred on the high bar. Coach Higgins termed their year a "good one," adding that the strategy this year was built on teaching the athletes special new tricks, taking the emphasis away from the basics just slightly.

The novice gymnasts did considerably better, ending with a 6-2 record. Captain Bruce Towne led the team to several fine triumphs while Most Valuable Robert Wright performed well in his own right. Coach Higgins commented that "if many of these players stick with it, we'll have a real good future team."

Hard Working Frosh-Soph Matmen Take Conference

The JV Matmen fared better than the Varsity ending the season with a 6-8 record. The dedicated team was led by Captain Dan Hader, while MVP Paul Jelinek and other fine players supplied many extraordinary moments of grappling action. Yet, the big news of the season was the remarkable achievements chalked up by the underclassmen. The Sophomore team ended the season with an almost faultless record of 14-1, which earned the Central Suburban League Championship. The squad also boast a host of individual conference champs: Chuck Meyers, Jerry Magas, Ed Frick, Co-Captains Roger Burton and Tim Starck, and MVP David Jenkins. The Freshman team also sported a conference championship and a 14-1 record, while four exceptional tyros, Mark Staub, MVP Richard Dorman, and Co-Captains Brian Gill and Pat Anderson walked off with conference honors.

Swim Teams are Ahead on the Frosh-Soph Levels

Sophomore swimmers made a big splash this year as they finished the season with a 6-4 record. Breaking records was one of the trends that carried through all three levels of swimming teams. Freshmen compiled a fine 7-5 record in their first year of competition. Leading the sophomores, Most Valuable Swimmers David Dane and Bob McCullough along with Captain Mark Umbach, turned in winning performances. For the freshmen, Captains John Andrew and Ken Banks and Most Valuable Swimmer Dane Kozey were outstanding.

Sophomore Track Team Shows Talent for Future

This year's sophomore track team placed fifth in conference, while showing some top-ranking talent for the future. Leading the team was cross country letterman Dave Senf running the mile. Tom Ruggeri and Brian Murphy provided an excellent one-two punch in the pole vault, placing first and second in conference. Ron Kilinski, made a fine showing as a shot putter, and Keith Skaathum, although starting late in the season, placed fourth in conference in the low hurdles. Although only a freshman, John Gregornik placed on the sophomore level in the high jump.

Frosh-Soph Diamondmen Undaunted by Competition

The Sophomore baseball team of Maine South appeared even more promising than that of 1971, even though several of last year's players had graduated to Varsity and played in many games. The team showed form and had obviously improved from the frosh team of last year. Nevertheless, the players still had a tough schedule to play, and every game that the Hawks won was a contest.

Another bright spot in the Hawk lineup was the Freshman team, which displayed the playing skill necessary to win games. Although both teams were consistent with the present Maine South tradition, the A squad was exceptional with a surprising early season start in the conference standings race.

Frosh Soph Tennis Squad Displays Great Court Skill

The Frosh-Soph tennis team had a successful season finishing quite high in their tough conference. This season seemed to herald the beginning of good things to come. Several outstanding freshmen including Marty Joyce, Tom Fendon, Bob Hildebrand, and Ron Miller often competed at the Varsity level while also contributing their talents to the Frosh-Soph squad. Sophomores Jim Haase and Gary Grandolph were fine starters who played equally well in both singles and doubles. Another freshman, Bob Lee, had a fine year as a starting singles player, as did Dave Krumwiede and Tom Zdeblich whose achievements helped to round off the fine team.

Sophomore Golfers Find Summer Practice Helpful

This year, the sophomores found that they could put the skills they had acquired during summer golfing to use during South's golfing season. On days when the changeable spring weather would not permit visits to the local golf course, the golfers took their practice swings in the fieldhouse where special equipment had been provided. When the players were able to get out on the course, the feeling of friendly competition sharpened their senses, and helped them to play their best games in their attempts at lower and better scores. This experience served as preparation for future years as Varsity golfers.

BLACK IS Dilemma
of the Black Cop

In art class, you concentrate on keeping your hand steady as you draw; you contemplate today's problems as you read of them in the pit; while being sketched by other students, you try to hold yourself still; you smile while hearing a funny story in lounge; as you look upon where the "black" stands in today's society, you feel depressed: these are the

FACES IN POSE

Mr. Robert Barker (above left), Assistant Principal of our Faculty was always able to help staff members in any way.

Administrators Concentrate Efforts on Good Education

Six administrators concentrated on providing the best education possible for the district and for Maine South. On the district level, our superintendent Dr. Short was constantly trying to improve educational standards and at the same time cut down on district expenses. Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent, Dr. Myers, helped to lessen Dr. Short's burden by helping with curriculum developments. Curriculum and educational materials were the concerns of Mr. Frost, Assistant Superintendent. At Maine South, Dr. Watson worked to coordinate South's activities in his duty as Principal. Mr. Barker, Assistant Principal of Faculty, endeavored to create better lines of communication between the administration and staff members, while Mr. Simonson, Assistant Principal of Students sought to create a link between the administration and the students.

Mr. Robert Simonson (above left) served as our Assistant Principal of Students.

Administrators Determined In Meeting Students Needs

The operation of South depends largely upon the combined efforts of several of its administrators. Mr. Harold Markworth, Business Manager works not only for South but for the entire district in the area of finance. Our three deans, Miss Iliff, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Bitta are constantly working to solve student problems. South's Executive Committee and Administrative Council works with diligence to provide inspirational new links between students, teachers, and the public in striving for a more perfect educational system. Thus, understanding and cooperation proved essential in order to pursue the goals to offer quality education.

Adult Service Groups Aid Both Students and Faculty

Efficiency, devotion, and organization are the primary success secrets of the many adults who offer their services to Maine South. Both the departmental secretaries and the personnel office staffs, as well as the main office secretaries put their skills to constructive use in aiding the administration. Our campus officer Mr. Dreyer handles traffic-fines and supervises the parking lot. The librarians help the faculty and students in obtaining needed books. Keeping the school immaculate is the job of the custodians and matrons, while the cafeteria workers prepare our food. The adult evening school staff organizes registration for adults who request additional educational backgrounds, and para-professionals act as directors in the study halls and reading center.

Students Find Satisfaction In Working in Our Offices

Many generous members of the Maine South student body volunteered some of their free time to aid in the operation of their school. The members of the Lighting and Audio-Visual Staffs worked to make our stage productions successful. Parking Lot Monitors directed drivers in parking their cars at after-school events. The Bookstore Helpers aided adult employees in supplying needed materials, while Library Helpers aided librarians by shelving books. The Health Office Helpers assisted the nurses in admitting ill students to the office. Main Office Helpers stuffed teachers' mail-boxes and Attendance Office Helpers received excuses for absences. The Deans' Office Helpers ran errands for the deans. Thus, all student helpers aided our school.

Freshmen are Welcomed Into Maine South Activities

The Freshmen were initiated into active Maine South life by attending various activities open to their class. Beginning the first day with the entire school in attendance was no less than a shock, and it was a real challenge to adjust to the enormity. Cheering, yelling, and singing the Maine South Pep Song at football games and other sports events helped the Freshmen feel more a part of South. Homecoming was an unique experience for the majority of the class, and in the end was a success with the winning of a second place award. Numerous council projects, such as open campus, lounge, and V-Show gave the Freshmen a chance to air their opinions and contribute valuable ideas. Together the class overcame many first-year experiences. Through these experiences, they merged into a unit with the spirit of '75.

Class of '74 Establishes Its Position at Maine South

As the new school year began, the changes in the class of '74 were evident. The class took on the role of Sophomores and no longer remained the silent Freshmen of the previous year. As Sophomores, they showed their newfound confidence by voicing many suggestions to the unsuspecting Freshmen. The Sophomore class gained new recognition as their athletes and cheerleaders demonstrated their skills before a variety of audiences. The lounge became a new privilege for the Sophomores, which required them to experience more maturity and self-control.

Early in the fall, Sophomores had their first chance to order their class rings, and they anxiously awaited their delivery in December. Participating in the second Homecoming activities, sophomores captured a third in the float competition. Through their extended activities, the class of '74 firmly established its place in South's ranks.

Juniors Unite to Contribute Spirit to South's Activities

In becoming upperclassmen this year, the junior class met with many new challenges. The academic pressures for juniors were even greater than the two previous years. They struggled to maintain and raise grades to an acceptable level for college admittance. As the juniors investigated various colleges, they found career researching a job requiring both concentration and time. Many juniors filled key positions in class council, student council, and club activities. The class collaborated in an effort to place in Homecoming float competition, and although their float did not place, the spirit and unity of the junior class was lifted. By attending sports events, contributing to school government, and supporting class projects, the juniors established a unity in the anticipation of being seniors next year.

Class of 72 Continues to Work Together as a Unit

Throughout the past three years, the class of '72 has built itself up as a functional unit, with a spirit that has prevailed throughout their Senior year. In anticipation of graduation, and a future of college or a job, each senior has concentrated on the courses of his final high school year. Active support made Homecoming a huge success as an event sponsored by the senior class. Seniors looked forward to the prom as the main event of the year, and the culmination of four years at Maine South. With the added responsibility of being upperclassmen, the seniors utilized much of their spare time for student government and service projects. In sports, the varsity teams made outstanding records, while the fans showed unbounded spirit for all events.

Showing their spirit at Homecoming, the Hawk of Maine South and the senior class proudly paraded around the home field.
